

THE ENVISIONED LANDSCAPE

Bob Kim captures the essence of everpresent natural beauty and our primordial connection to it.

He creates images that transcend the limits of camera and film, a vision of nature's panoramic grandeur, timeless and unspoiled.

His artistry is a unique combination of the camera's eye and the mind's envision. It is his original method of mixing classic painting techniques and traditional fine art photography and latest digital tools that gives physical presence as well as emotionally dramatic lighting, greater range of color fidelity and extraordinary details.

Kim's rendition of Hedrick pond in Wyoming is the product of over two hundred photographs, edited down to thirty images taken in a two-week period from five different viewpoints of the park. It took him over a month to create the final composite image, a result of extensive color correction, dodging, burning, and masking.

His prints are richly color saturated, vividly sharp, and showing great detail. All his prints are created using direct digital enlarger and modern substrates such as Fuji Crystal Archive. These quality archival fine art prints are made to last for generations. All of Bob Kim's prints are individually created, carefully analyzed, signed, and numbered.

Fine Art Photography

Photographed in Grand Teton N.P., Hedrick Pond is one of Bob Kim's signature images. Typical of his work, it is the product of more than 200 exposures made over a two-week period from five different viewpoints. From them Kim selected 30 photographs and spent several weeks layering, masking, color correcting, dodging and burning them to create the final composite image.

With Hedrick Pond Bob Kim won Popular Photography magazine's 12th Annual International Picture Contest in 2006. Popular Photography wrote: "For our Grand Prize-winning photographer, the world is a wide place, both figuratively and photographically. Bob Kim's inspiration in landscape photography belies the notion of capturing a single moment in time."
